

Gracie Mae Bradley

Short Biography

Gracie Mae Bradley is a writer, policy expert and campaigner concerned with what it means for people to live flourishing lives. She is particularly interested in civil liberties, state power, tech/surveillance, Black feminism, and abolition. She is currently working on a novel.

Gracie is the host of the Stuart Hall Foundation's Locating Legacies podcast, co-author of Against Borders (Verso, 2022), and author of the essay From Grenfell to Windrush which appears in "After Grenfell: Violence, Resistance and Response" (Pluto Press, 2019). She holds a BA (Hons) in Philosophy & French from Trinity College, University of Oxford, and an MSc in Human Rights from the LSE. From autumn 2024 she is a James McCune Smith Scholar at the University of Glasgow studying for a Doctorate in Fine Art in Creative Writing.